

Commercial Fishing and Recreational Interests

The waters off Southern California are popular for commercial and sport fishing, diving and other recreational activities of social and economic importance. These industries support large numbers of fishermen, boat operators and recreational boaters.

Access in Southern California

Ocean areas around San Clemente Island are accessible to the public for recreational and commercial purposes. The Navy is committed to public safety during training and testing to minimize risk to its personnel, island users, and commercial and recreational enthusiasts.

The Navy has a public website, <http://www.scisland.org>, to provide scheduling information to fishermen, boaters, divers and other users of areas around San Clemente Island. By accessing this website, users can better plan their routes to avoid areas temporarily restricted because of Navy activity.